Excellent game!

Very well executed and original.
Perfect little mini-game for my laptop when im travling or simply not at home.
. This game is surprisingly fun, once you set the controls right :). This game physically made me sick. The overuse of BLOOM and RED objects everywhere made me dizzy and nauseous. The puzzles are OK, but the controller doesn't always feel fair. It's so bloomy that it's hard to tell when you're on the ground so sometimes you want to jump but it doesn't register and you fall to your death. It doesn't feel fair half the time, but the other half it feels great. It just needs more work. It's definitely no Portal quality. Also, when you die, the mouse should automatically be hovering over retry instead of go to menu. I accidentally pressed go to the menu a few times when I just wanted to re-try.

Remove or fix the levels where it's just a giant red maze. It's rage inducing because it's not clear about how much space you have to walk with your player collider, and the red in that level is the one that made me physically sick. It's not fun to find those orbs since they blend in a bit and the bloom makes it hard to see them.

Dev, please remove the bloom! Please add an option to turn it off.

The game needs work. I can update my review once it's fixed and updated. Good start, but this game will give someone a seizure.. Very jumpy, it feels thrown together. From what i've seen the full VR game seem much better.. Cayle George has made a great standalone escape game here. He's pulled out all the classics yet didn't pull a single punch! Great fun, challenging, some mind-bending pathfinding and soap on a rope. And I'll always cherish my Executive Plunger! What's not to love?. Bad gamepad support. I posted a while back about how the game doesn't recognize my xbox controller and got zero response. Tired of waiting for an update to fix it, so I'm just going to give it a bad review.

One Word Review: Exhilarating. I've been having problems with this game such as an application load error. I have tried many things to try to make the game work again but nothing has helped. Other then that I love this game and do reccomend it.. A review for disabled gamers:

Options are in game are pretty scarce. The game starts in windowed mode and has borderless edges. There is an option for Fullscreen. There's no Subtitles or Colorblind Mode in the options. There's also no voice acting so subtitles are unneeded. Colorblind mode would help as some quests are color coded according to tutorial.

Game play is very.point and click and I really couldn't make it playable with onscreen keyboard. With a standard keyboard it IS playable using the hotkeys above! No keyboard is necessary however for mouse only gamers. You can speed up gameplay during the long slow periods and have the game automatically slow back down when events occur. The game can be paused or saved at anytime so fatigue shouldn't be a concern.

If you can play point & click games and have always wanted to be Satan running an apartment, this game is for you. The tenants themselves are so adorable it's worth checking out.. CPUCORES IS THE BEST!. bought in early because I think this is going to be a good one based on flyinsides history with VR. . I will say that I had an issue with the sim crashing for some reason and the dev responded immediately to help but the issue resolved itself while we were setting up a debug session. So I would say to anyone having issues shoot him an email before giving a thumbs down, remember its early access.. Playing only in VR.

Just took the jump. The game plays awesome and performance is great. The microtransactions make me a bit leery but with how much of an advantage VR users have over phone users, you make money so quickly. You also get $20 worth of in game cash which will buy you everything.

The game is great for jumping in and playing rounds. Very fast loading and getting to the fun parts.

I absolutely love how you shoot better when you are holding the gun like a real paintball gun aiming down the side. The game feels great in that sense. What I think is missing is the urgency of getting to cover because the AI is not accurate enough.

The asyncronous PvP is also really neat for this. Multiplayer is hard for VR due to population so you can always have an active game no matter how many people are playing. Great game to just get in and play a few rounds.. TL;DR
Great platform, amazing debugging, and offers a lot of baked-in value, especially at the price. There are other platforms just as capable with similar offerings, but from personal perspective, I liked what little bit I tested out. Unfortunately latent discoveries compelled me to uninstall becaue the overall package didn't fit my personal need. It would however, fit the need of many with more expeirence and / or fewer requirements.

I liked what I used within it, and it definately met some of the needs through addressing many wants but I was unaware that WINGS IDE 6 was released on 12/20 which packs in several modernized features to include directly working within Raspberry Pi as well as other feature-rich items....IF you buy the $245 professional edition. However, there is now a free edition that is just an updated version of IDE 5 and the developers moved away from Personal / Commercial to Personal / Professional.

I dont fully understnad this model and offering Pi as a 'professional' feature given most users of Pi dont create a full blown product for sale. Though they may, it doesnt encourage use and learning to use IDE for the growing popularity of Pi based systems.. 🌟🌟🌟🌟🌟. Great of VR and live action actors which is a pretty new technique in this medium. I don't fully understand the story because the song is sung in a language I don't speak, but still entertaining. Hands down some of the best graphics to be found in VR all the while being a smooth experience. On top of all that it's free. Get it if you like any of the things I listed. Label me impressed.
